DON'T judge a man by the noise he makes—the poorest machinery creaks the loudest.—Herbert Kauffman.

Next stop: St. Patrick's day—Friday, March 17.

Yes, "Let Lansing do the talking." He can say enough.

Tom Watson and them Russians are suddenly raising Cain.

"Looks like Roosevelt!" shouts an exchange. Better kill it.

B. Lewis and the Mountain View hotel are putting Easley on the map.

There is a "Glenn" street in Anderson, and we suppose it was named for Mell Glenn.

Anyhow, that Brandies has a good-sounding name, whether he gets confirmed or not.

If we are to have a secretary of peace in the cabinet, as has been suggested, we nominate Henry Ford for the job.

When time hangs heavily down in Georgia the natives either lynch a nigger or indict Tom Watson some more.

Those newspapers that roasted Mr. Bryan for resigning haven't said a word about Mr. Garrison "feather-legging."

"Check Upon Lynching," goes a headline in a Georgia newspaper. Don't do it—it might destroy the Cracker state's chief industry.

Mr. Bryan's critics complain that the "Peerless One" is always out for the money. Just like the rest of mankind, including Willieheast.

Gary Hiott admits that The Pickens Sentinel is second-class mail matter.—Gaffney Ledger. He further admits that it is first-class reading matter.

It is reported on what is considered good authority that the French regained seven inches of trenches the Germans captured from them some time ago.

Spartanburg Journal is running some news that happened in that town 15 and 22 years ago. But who around Pickens cares what happened in Spartanburg 15 and 22 years ago?

Speaking of using automobiles for the rural routes, it may be very well for some sections of the country, but there are some routes we know of where it would be better to use a billy-goat.

Wonder why North Carolina don't ask the president to appoint one of her native sons to the vacancy in the war department? She has asked for almost every other place—and got some of them, too.

A. H. A. of Central contributes another one:
If you would know just to what 'heights' The ladies' skirts will be,
Just 'high' is all the ladies say;
But to the word prefix a 'T.'

"Was there ever a hostess who was not charming or a host who was not genial?" inquires Anderson Intelligence. No, indeed; the host, or hostess, as the case may be, was always an ideal one.

It was very patriotic of that little Brooklyn girl to start a ten-cent fund to build a battleship for Uncle Sam, but it would take a much longer time to count those dimes than it would to build half a dozen warships.

The Columbia State was twenty-five years old last Friday and celebrated the event by publishing one of the most interesting papers we have read in a long time. The State has had a remarkable career—and many people consider it the South's leading newspaper. It is one of the strongest in the United States. The Sentinel wishes for The State many more years of usefulness and that it may grow stronger and better each year.

OUR WEEKLY RIDDLE.—Why is the Mississippi the most eloquent of rivers? Because it has a dozen mouths.

Campaign Year

This year is what we call a political year. Candidates for the different offices will soon be announced and the campaign will be in full blast.

Our state political campaigns for several years past have been bitter and have caused much hard feelings, sometimes among good friends; and sometimes good neighbors have fallen out and become enemies.

Would it not be well for us as citizens and voters to calmly make up our minds to do better this time? Let us make up our minds to try as best we can to select the best men for the offices, regardless of what faction they may have belonged to in the past?

We are tired of extreme men and extreme measures. Let us hunt for the conservative men and put them in the different offices. We do not intend to support a man for office when about the only qualification he has for the office is that he had always belonged to the same faction that we have belonged to or that we have generally voted with.

Prejudice is blind, and if we allow ourselves to become prejudiced against men or measures we can't see any good in them.

The management of this paper does not intend to treat anybody unfair. Personally we have our own views about men and about certain measures, but we do not intend to try to force our views on others in any way that will be offensive to those who do not believe as we do. We would be so glad to see the campaign without bitterness and strife, and if we can lend a helping hand in that direction we will only be too glad to do so.

While of course we will support certain men for office, we do not intend to be unfair or unfriendly to the man or men whom we do not support. We have a right to our choice and we grant to others the same right that we claim for ourselves.

Ex-Secretary of War Garrison says he would not accept the governorship of New Jersey if certificates of election were tendered him on a silver platter. It is well enough to decline things after they have been offered to you—not before.

The editor of Anderson Mail should read Frederick J. Haskin's articles on commission form of government for cities if he thinks they have proved failures. The right kind of men can be found to manage a city honestly just as easily as the right kind of a manager can be found for any other business. There are more successes than failures in the commission form of governing cities. Take Washington, D. C., for an example. It is governed by commissioners.

Representatives of big corporations are lined up solidly against the confirmation of Brandies for the supreme court, and the people are just as solidly lined up on the other side. Who will win—the people or the corporations? The answer depends on how many corporation attorneys there are in the senate.

Thomas A. Edison says the war in Europe will last two more years, and that the Allies will win. He also says that the United States will not be involved, and that the worst that will happen is possibly the breaking off of diplomatic relations with some of the nations. Which is about as good a guess as any.

Henry Ford has a new scheme to help out his anti-preparedness ideas, and it sounds better than his peace party episode. He says he intends to launch a country-wide campaign of newspaper and magazine advertising against the program for huge naval and military expenditures now before congress. Mr. Ford says all of the people of the country will be reached by his plan. Henry will find that it costs about as much money to run a one-page ad. in some newspapers and magazines as one of his machines brings him. However, the newspapers will welcome the auto king as an advertiser on a cash basis—he's had his share of free advertising.

When we read the proceedings of the South Carolina legislature we cannot keep from thinking of a little incident which is said to have happened in North Carolina not so very, very long ago. A member of the South Carolina legislature and a North Carolinian were arguing about the greatness of their respective states, when the S. C. colon said: "Well, how is it that North Carolina has to maintain two asylums for its mentally unbalanced people, while South Carolina has only one asylum?" "Well, replied the Tarheel, "up here we send all our crazy people to the asylum, while down in South Carolina what the asylum won't hold you send to the legislature."

Wanted—Teams, 2.50 per day. Steady work. See A. B. Taylor.

Campaign Year

Every citizen should keep himself posted on things political in this state this year; especially should Pickens county people keep posted on Pickens county affairs; and those who read The Pickens Sentinel will be posted.

We may give you some views on affairs, but our primary object will be to give you the NEWS, impartial and unbiased, and let you do your own "viewing."

We are going to make The Sentinel worth more to you than you pay for it, and no citizen of the county can really afford to do without it. Whoever is doing without his county paper, thinking he is saving a dollar a year, is practicing false economy.

The Pickens Sentinel prints more Pickens county news than all other papers combined and gives you the important state and general news, too. Besides the news, it carries weekly other interesting features, such as a good serial story, Sunday school lesson, farming articles, fashion hints, humorous stories, etc.—something for every member of the family. In fact it is the biggest dollar's worth of reading a Pickens county man can buy. You may get more reading for a dollar, but you don't get the same class.

The price of The Sentinel is one dollar a year—less than 2c a week—in advance.

Ask your neighbor to take the county paper. It will help him, and the more subscribers we have the better paper we can publish for you.

A Campaign Scheme

Edgefield Advertiser.

Those congressmen in Washington who are having suits made of old-time, hand-woven jeans realize that this is election year and they want to get in sympathetic touch with the people.

Lest They Forget

Spartanburg Journal.

A picture of a church is printed by the Walterboro Press and Standard on its front page in order that the people of Colleton county might know what one looks like.

A Bull's Eye Shot

Newberry Observer.

It's not the mother who threatens to skin 'em alive that has the most obedient children, but the one who is sure to punish them for disobedience. And so with the law; it is not the severity of the law that commands obedience so much as the certainty of its enforcement.

First Spring Pome

Newberry Observer.

Our esteemed confrere, Gary Hiott, of The Pickens Sentinel, perpetrates the first spring pome of the season—and it is not bad, either. As it is a short pome we make haste to give it to the Observer readers before he takes out a copyright on it:

"This pretty weather
Seems like spring
And makes the little
Birdies sing."

A Pitiful Sight

Tugaloo Tribune.

A rather uncommon and pitiful sight was seen on Southern train No. 12 one day last week. A widow lady with 12 children got on Conductor Jim Rowland's train at Liberty and got off at Easley, where it is understood they were to work in the cotton mill. The oldest child was not over 15. The lady was the mother of all except two, whom she said were adopted children. It is rather uncommon to see so many so near the same size in one family. Only two or three were old enough to help this woman make a living.
